Academic Dress

The origins of academic dress date back to the Twelfth and Thirteenth centuries when universities in England were taking form. The scholars were also clerics and thus adopted robes similar to those of their monastic orders. Caps were a necessity in the drafty buildings and capes with hoods were needed for warmth.

In the United States, the use of academic dress has been continuous since colonial times. A uniform system was not widespread, however, until about 1895, when the well-defined dress code was adopted by nearly all institutions of higher education.

Gowns worn by those in the procession vary in design and decoration according to the degree held. Although the gown is more frequently black, certain universities have authorized the use of colored gowns.

Hoods, which are the most distinctive feature of the American code, vary in length according to the type of degree held and are lined with the official colors of the institution conferring the degree. The velvet border or edging indicates the degree or subject by use of the appropriate color.

The standard cap is the mortarboard and is usually the same for all degrees. The standard tassel is black, but the doctor's cap may have a gold tassel. Undergraduates wear the tassel on the right side of the cap until the moment the degree is conferred.

Associate Degree

The design of the gown is the same as the bachelor's degree.
The color of the gown is gray.

Bachelor's Degree

The academic gown has short or regular sleeves.
The length of the hood must be three feet.

Master's Degree

The academic gown has pointed sleeves.
The length of the hood is three and one-half feet.

Doctorate Degree

The academic gown has round full sleeves. The doctor's gown is faced down the front with black velvet trimming and has three bars of the same material across the sleeves or, in some cases, the color of this velvet relates to the field in which the degree is granted. The length of the hood is four feet.
